Walmart baby case heard in Supreme Court

2007 incident.

Highest court begins case of Saskatchewan woman who left newborn in toilet

BRIAN MOSKOWITZ
For Metro in Saskatoon

After hearing several hours of competing arguments in the case of a Saskatchewan woman who was found not guilty of abandoning her newborn baby in a Walmart toilet, the Supreme Court of Canada adjourned its decision Thursday morning.

The Crown is appealing the Saskatchewan Court of Appeal's upholding the acquittal of A.D.H. — her name is under a publication ban — who gave birth in the washroom stall of a Prince Albert Walmart in 2007, leaving the newborn behind because she said she believed the baby was dead.

Shoppers found the baby boy, who initially did not appear to be breathing but was revived and hospitalized. He was then placed with a family member.

The Supreme Court's decision has the potential to change the way judges determine criminal intent, said Aaron Fox, Q.C., criminal defence lawyer with McDougall Gauley LLP in Regina.

"If the Supreme Court allows the Crown appeal it will have an impact on other cases and could change how guilt has traditionally been established in our legal system," he said.

Fox explained that the standard way judges determine guilt is by figuring out whether or not the person had intended to break the law.

In the case of A.D.H., the Crown is arguing that the defendant's guilt should be decided by how reasonable her claims are and not by what she says she was thinking at the time.

The Saskatchewan judge accepted that she thought the baby was deceased, which the Crown thinks is unreasonable, said Fox. "To put a reasonableness test to that is different than determining intent."

Fox said if the court decides against A.D.H., "it would change the law, because until now, the question was not whether the belief was reasonable, but whether she believed it or not, no matter how unreasonable it is."

RCMP officer pleads not guilty to assault

A member of the RCMP has pleaded not guilty to assault charges in Lloydminster provincial court.

Climate change will cause more tornadoes, rain in Saskatchewan

Researchers at the University of Saskatchewan say a changing climate in the province will mean more tornadoes and more rain, but also milder winters.

John Pomeroy says the jet streams are further north than they've ever been before, which is allowing more hot and humid air from storms in the Gulf of Mexico to reach Saskatchewan.

Pomeroy says the threat is that the province's infrastructure has been designed for drier conditions.

He says Saskatchewan needs to be rebuilt so it's a safe and reasonable place to live in a wetter environment.

NDP Leader Thomas Mulcair placed the XL Foods beef recall at the feet of the Conservative government while in Regina Thursday.

"When you look at service, and this government cuts services, it gives you results like XL Foods," said Mulcair to a packed University of Regina political science class.

Mulcair said the massive Alberta beef recall was a result of no planning or little priority on the part of the Conservative government. The leader of Canada's official opposition spoke on why youth involvement in Canadian politics matters and how they can start participating in the political process.

Mulcair said it was important to take an active role in changing and shaping the world while still learning about it at university. He also spoke about ecological, economical and social debt youth of today will inherit in a generation. He said youth should get involved, regardless of party.

"I'm here to tell you to get involved. Liberals, Green, NDP or Conservative, realize you have a role," he said.

Mulcair noted Canada was experiencing a divide between social classes like never before. He said it was a result of a lack of planning on the behalf of the government.

"They cut when there are no priorities. Instead of cutting with a scalpel, they're using a rusty machete," he said.

Jim Farney, assistant political science professor at the University of Regina, said he was glad Mulcair had a break from Ottawa business to speak to the class.

"This class is normally much less exciting and about half as full."

Ontario first to allow transgendered people to change birth certificates

Ontario has become the first jurisdiction in Canada to allow transgendered people to change the gender on their birth certificates without sex-change surgery.

"It's a huge decision. It's a remarkably positive decision. This is an important victory," Susan Gapka, chair of the Trans Lobby Group, told Torstar News Service on Thursday.

The new rules, published this week, mean a transgendered person can apply to ServiceOntario for a new birth certificate with only a letter from a physician or psychologist.

Previously, the Vital Statistics Act required proof of "transsexual surgery."

Ontario was acting on a ruling in April from the Ontario Human Rights Commission.

The commission acted on a complaint brought by a transgendered woman known as XY who argued she was exposed to discrimination and violence because the gender

Protest expected at launch of Ireland's first abortion clinic

A family planning charity plans to open the first abortion clinic in Ireland, challenging decades of legal confusion over the extremely limited access to pregnancy terminations in both parts of the island.

Officials at the Marie Stopes facility due to open next week in Belfast, capital of the British territory of Northern Ireland, said Thursday they plan to offer non-surgical abortions to women whose pregnancies are less than nine weeks in gestation. They expect protests and have declined to reveal the clinic's street address.

Abortions under such circumstances are supposed to be legal already in both parts of Ireland.

But lawmakers have failed for decades to clarify the situation, leaving hospitals and doctors fearful of suffering pickets or lawsuits if they're publicly identified as an abortion provider.

In Belfast, Northern Ire-

It ordered abortions to be legalized to save a woman's life — including her own threat to commit suicide if denied one.

"The law in Northern Ireland has been very unclear for many women and health-care professionals," said Dawn Purvis, director of the new clinic. "Our clinic will provide a safe, caring, sensitive environment for integrated family planning in Northern Ireland for the first time."

Toews says naval spy scandal hasn't hurt Canada's reputation

Working with allies.

The ease with which Delisle passed secrets to the Russians has prompted a review of security measures

The federal public safety minister says Canada remains tight with its intelligence allies despite a naval spy scandal that is said to have done "irreparable damage" to the country's interests.

Vic Toews said Thursday he doesn't believe Canada's reputation with its closest collaborators has been hurt at all by navy Sub-Lt. Jeffery Paul Delisle's actions. Toews noted he continues to work closely with Janet Napolitano, the U.S. Homeland Security secretary, and Eric Holder, the U.S. attorney general.

"They have never expressed anything other than a commitment to working with us in the future," Toews said

Delisle, a 41-year-old intelligence officer with the Royal Canadian Navy, pleaded guilty Wednesday to passing military secrets to Russia. He transferred sensitive information onto a thumb drive from a secure location before passing it to a Russian operative.

How that could happen so easily at a highly protected facility has prompted a review of security measures that were in place at the time, Toews said.

Vic Toews said the government is also aware that the head of the U.S. Intelligence Committee is urging Canadian companies not to do business with the Chinese telecommunications giant Huawei as a matter of national security.

A U.S. report earlier this week urged companies to avoid doing business with Huawei and ZTE and said regulators should prevent them from buying U.S. companies. It also said government computer systems should not include components from them because they might pose an espionage risk.

Judges speak out on Pussy Riot decision

Panel tries to deflect international criticism by defending prison time for two others

The Russian judges who ruled to keep two of the three Pussy Riot band members behind bars took the unusual step of publicly defending their decision, saying Thursday that it was made independently and without pressure.

A panel of three judges at the Moscow City Court on Wednesday upheld a lower court ruling to send Nadezhda Tolokonnikova and Maria Alekhina to prison for two years, but they released Yekaterina Samutseva after giving her a suspended sentence.

Pussy Riot staged an impromptu performance at Moscow's main cathedral in February in protest against President Vladimir Putin and the Russian Orthodox Church hierarchy for openly supporting his rule. The three women were convicted of hooliganism motivated by religious hatred, but they insist that their protest was political in nature and not an attack on religion.

Judge Larisa Polyakova speaks with the media in Moscow Thursday. SERGEY PONOMAREV/THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

The case has caused controversy in Russia and been widely condemned in the West, which may have prompted the judges to speak out.

The presiding judge said the appeals court deemed it necessary for Tolokonnikova and Alekhina to remain incarcerated.

"The court has considered all the circumstances of the case and the level of danger to society and ruled that their correction is possible only in isolation from society," judge Larisa Polyakova said.

An anti-Muslim American pastor who earned an international reputation after burning copies of the Islamic holy text has been denied entry into Canada hours before he was to speak at a free-speech rally in Toronto, organizers said Thursday.

Allan Einstoss said Terry Jones was turned back at the Michigan-Ontario border after being held there for five hours. Jones was told he was barred from entering the country when officials could not verify whether or not he had a criminal record in the U.S., he said.

Einstoss decried the decision to keep Jones from attending a multifaceted debate on freedom of speech, which was slated to take place in front of the Ontario legislature on Thursday evening.

He poured scorn on the official reason for the denial, saying it defied logic.

"In terms of checking for criminal records, I would make the assumption that's what they do on a daily basis," Einstoss said in a telephone interview.

Jones could not immediately be reached for comment.

The Canada Border Services Agency declined to discuss Jones' case, saying it was against their policy to share details of any individual efforts to enter the country.

"Admissibility of all travelers seeking to enter Canada is considered on a case-by-case basis based on the specific facts presented by the applicant at the time of entry," the agency said in a statement.

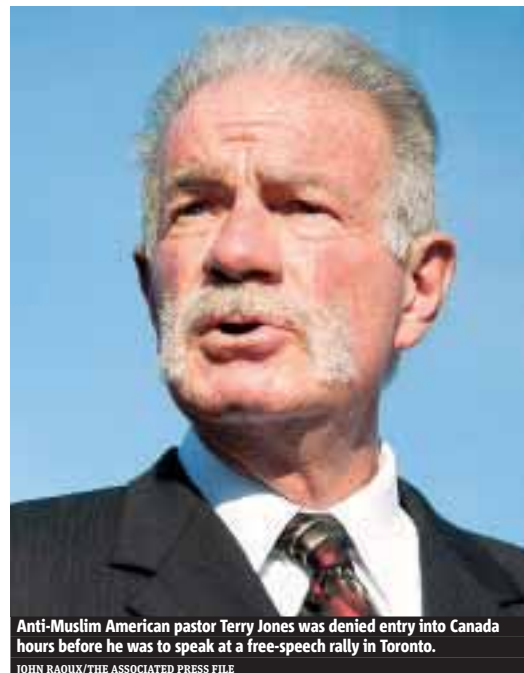

Word that Jones had been turned back at the border spread rapidly through social media, drawing a slew of wide-ranging reactions.

Some touted the decision as an attack on freedom of expression, while others celebrated the fact that a man who commemorated the ninth anniversary of 9-11 by burning copies of the Qur'an at his church in Gainesville, Fla., would not have the opportunity to bring his message to Canadian soil.

"Yeah, Canada for standing up to hate and racism," read one Twitter post.

"I would've loved to check out the debate! But I'm glad Terry Jones isn't being let in," wrote another.

Terry Jones was scheduled to be the primary attraction at a multifaceted debate on the film "Innocence of Muslims," whose negative portrayal of the Islamic prophet Mohammad has incited violent riots around the world. One skirmish claimed the life of the U.S. ambassador to Libya, along with three members of his staff.

Jones was slated to square off against Toronto imam Steve Rockwell, U.S.-based Muslim author Masud Ansari, and Sikh community leader Bikram Lamba. The event was also to feature a memorial to Cpl. Christopher Speer, a U.S. medic killed in Afghanistan by Canadian war criminal Omar Khadr.

Einstoss said the event will go ahead as planned, but lamented Jones' absence from the proceedings. Interference from border officials, he said, has quashed an opportunity for a meaningful dialog on free speech.

Bieber fans deface memorial

Some Justin Bieber fans defaced the memorial wall at Vancouver's Rogers Arena Wednesday night where Canucks fans have been paying tribute to Rick Rypien since his suicide just over a year ago.

One Rypien fan was up early the next morning to try to scrub the messages off with nail polish, but the messages to "J.B." were stubborn and by mid-morning the bottle was abandoned there, nearly full.

Fans of the late hockey forward, who suffered from clinical depression, took to Twitter to denounce the acts of vandalism.

"Oh man I don't like to call people stupid but how do you write about a Justin Bieber concert on Rick Rypien's memorial? Insanity," wrote Wyatt Arndt.

One Bieber fan apparently signed her name on the wall, and after a photo of the signature circulated online someone sent the girl a tweet telling her to jump off a bridge.

Another Twitter user, Alexandra Ransford, was hit by a backlash for calling the Bieber fan who signed the wall a b*.

"So after being depressed for 5 years I'm being bullied for being upset about a suicide victims memorial being written on. How pleasant :)" Ransford wrote.

Alexandra, 18, was too upset Thursday to do an interview, but her mother, Ellen Ransford, said she had been crying all morning about the defacement and being accused of "fuelling the fire" by Twitter users who assumed the vandals to be underage.

Naming and shaming.

Online vigilantes going after Reddit users who take sexualized pictures of unknowing women in public, post them online

JESSICA SMITH
Metro in Toronto

A photo of a woman's buttocks clad in white shorts, with a dark thong showing through, is one of the "creepshots" that started an online war about privacy.

Online vigilantes are targeting a Toronto man they say moderates a subsection of the popular website Reddit that is devoted to sexualized photos surreptitiously taken of women in public places.

It was deleted on Thursday by its moderator, "Creep-Comfort," after an apparent blackmail message.

It asked him to delete everything on the forum or have his identity made public.

"Leave only one post up: A public apology from you to the women of Toronto and to women in general for what you've been doing. The apology should acknowledge that r/creepshots is a vile subreddit because it normalizes perverted behaviour."

The Internet wasn't without creepshots for long. Reddit users created a new subreddit, r/creepsquad, to fill the void. They were moderating it more heavily to prevent contributors' identities from becoming known, but as of press time it had also been banned.

Online vigilantes rose again as well. An anonymous Reddit user created a Tumblr blog with the identities — including photos, workplaces, full names and sometimes addresses — of the men who posted on r/creepshots. The Tumblr blog is unrelated to the message sent to CreepComfort.

The creator of the Tumblr blog is anonymous but told the feminist website Jezebel she was hoping the men responsible would be reported.

"These f—ers think they can get away with it scot-free, which is one of the reasons why sexual violence is so prevalent around the world," she said.

Tumblr temporarily took down the Predditors blog after a Reddit user complained that it contained personal information about people it alleged were "sexual predators" without proof. The blog was later reinstated.

"This blog was mistakenly suspended under the impression that it was revealing private, rather than publicly available, information. We are restoring the blog," a Tumblr spokesperson said.

Reddit mod responds

One of the moderators of the Reddit forums devoted to creepshots claims she's a woman who is disgusted by the photos but cares more about freedom of speech.

A Reddit user with the handle POTATO_IN_MY_ANUS told Metro in an email interview that she values her privacy, so she won't disclose her name. Her frequent posts on Reddit are often pornographic.

"I do not agree with creepshots and think they are a gross invasion of privacy," she wrote. "However, there were even more disgusting attempts to mischaracterize creepshots photographers as potential rapists and sex offenders. I think that is trivializing sexual crimes."

She says a photographer was beaten up after his identity was made public, but she can't provide proof of the attack because it would expose the victim.

Privacy advocate not feeling sorry for photogs

A professor who argues that the Internet needs better structures for protecting users' privacy has little sympathy for the creepshot photographers whose identities were exposed on a blog.

"You can't harm people on the one hand and cry me a river about your privacy invasion on the other," said Ryerson University's Avner Levin, who specializes in Internet privacy.

People can feel their privacy is violated when information they post to one site is used for a purpose that they didn't expect, Levin says.

"I think where we need to go as a society is to come down with rules concerning when that kind of connection should be allowed," he said.

However, the women in creepshot photos have rights as well, Levin said.

"There is a big misconception that just because you're out in public, you're fair game," he said. "People seeing you walking around is, in our day and age, different from having a fixed image of you, or a body part of you, that's posted on a website and never deleted."

The women who are photographed without their consent will continue to be hurt as their photos continue to be viewed online, he said.

- After a video of upstate New York bus monitor Karen Klein being bullied went viral earlier this year, she and her grade-school tormentors were identified. Internet users raised more than $700,000 for her, some of which was used to set up the Karen Klein Anti-Bullying Foundation. The bullies were disciplined by their school and received death threats from the public.

Police have voyeurs in crosshairs

"Admiration" is one thing, voyeurism is another, according to police.

The Redditors who created r/creepshots argue that photos of unsuspecting woman are legal because they're in a public place, but Toronto police say it's not that simple.

"When you are in public, you do not have a reasonable expectation of privacy," the site says. "We kindly ask women to respect our right to admire your bodies and stop complaining."

Const. Tony Vella says there is a line between "admiration" and voyeurism.

"If you take a photograph of a person in a public forum for a sexual purpose, that is a criminal offence," he said.

To charge someone with voyeurism, police need to know when and where it was taken, who the person in the photo is, and if they consented to being photographed, as well as the intent of the photographer, said Vella.

"If someone files a complaint, we'll definitely investigate," he said.

Plane was carrying ammunition to Syria: Turkey's PM

Tough stand. Engineer on board Syrian plane said armed Turkish officials handcuffed the crew before inspecting packages

A plane intercepted by Turkish fighter jets on its way from Moscow to Damascus was carrying equipment and ammunition destined for the Syrian Defence Ministry, Turkey's prime minister said Thursday.

Recep Tayyip Erdogan's comments follow a fierce denial by Syria that anything illegal had been aboard the Airbus A320 that was forced by Turkey to land in Ankara late Wednesday. Syria, whose relations with neighbouring Turkey have plummeted over the Syrian war, branded it an act of piracy.

Earlier in the day, Turkish officials had rejected claims by Syria's ally, Russia, that Turkey had endangered the lives of Russian citizens on board the aircraft.

Yeni Safak, a newspaper close to the Turkish government, reported Thursday there were 10 containers aboard the plane, whose contents included radio receivers, antennas and equipment "thought to be missile parts."

Turkish state-run television TRT also reported the plane was carrying military communications equipment. Neither TRT nor the newspaper cited sources for their claims. The plane was allowed to continue to Damascus after several hours, without the cargo.

Erdogan refused to say how — or from whom — Turkey had learned that the twice-weekly scheduled flight would be used to transport military gear to Syria.

Turkey has called for Syrian President Bashar Assad to step down and Damascus accusing Turkey of supporting the rebels. The two neighbours have traded artillery fire over Syria's northern border throughout the past week.

Hours before the Turkish statement, Russian Ambassador Vladimir Ivanovsky had held talks with Turkish officials at the Foreign Ministry.

Russian Foreign Ministry spokesman Alexander Lukashevich had said earlier Thursday that Moscow was concerned that lives and safety of the 35 passengers, including 17 Russian citizens, had been endangered.

He said Turkey without explanation denied Russian consular officials and a doctor access to the passengers, who had not been allowed into the airport for eight hours or provided with food.

Terror cell. Islamists planned to send jihadists to Syria, prosecutor says

A network of French Islamists behind a grenade attack on a kosher market also planned to join jihadists fighting in Syria, a state prosecutor said Thursday, calling the suspected terrorist group potentially the most dangerous established in France since the 1990s.

Five of the 12 people arrested in sweeps in cities around France have been freed, said the prosecutor, Francois Molins. He said seven people remain in custody a day after police discovered bomb-making materials in an underground parking lot as part of a probe of an "extremely dangerous terrorist cell." The seven, aged 19 to 25 years old, were all born in France, he said.

The Sept. 19 attack on the market in Sarcelles, outside Paris, shattered windows and injured a customer at the store. It has revived French concerns that home-grown Islamic militants want to link with international jihad and carry out terrorism in France — this time, notably, against Jewish targets.

"The intent was to kill," Molins said.

Not through Iraqi territory, PM says

Iraq's prime minister says his country is doing all it can to prevent anyone from supplying weapons to Syria through Iraqi territory.

Iraq last month kept a North Korean plane from entering its airspace on suspicion it had weapons for Syria. But U.S. officials have previously accused Baghdad of letting Iran — another ally of Syria — fly weapons to Syrian forces through Iraqi airspace.

Montreal. Police officer 'No. 728' suspended over pepper-spray incident

A notorious police constable has been suspended after becoming involved, once again, in an aggressive exchange captured on video.

The officer best known in Montreal as "No. 728," in reference to her badge number, will be temporarily sidelined pending a disciplinary investigation, the local police chief announced Thursday.

The officer, Const. Stefanie Trudeau, first rose to local prominence earlier this year when video surfaced of her generously pepper-spraying a crowd of student protesters who appeared to pose no threat.

Montreal's police chief Marc Parent apologized Thursday to anyone slighted by the comments.

Man set on fire, another shot in labour unrest

South Africa. Violence has escalated at platinum mine since 12,000 striking workers were fired last week

Striking miners killed one man by setting him on fire Thursday while another was fatally shot, apparently by police, in rekindled labour unrest in South Africa that saw police firing tear gas and rubber bullets.

The violence near an Anglo American Platinum (Amplats) mine has escalated since the company dismissed 12,000 striking miners on Friday. Dozens have been killed in violence in other strikes in South Africa since August.

One person died Thursday in a hospital after being hit by two rubber bullets likely fired by police trying to disperse striking miners, said Gaddafi Mdoe, a leader of the striking Amplats mineworkers. Another person died from wounds after being set alight by striking workers, North West police spokesman Brig. Thulani Ngubane said.

"The situation remains tense," Ngubane said.

Police Capt. Dennis Adriaio said 40 people have been arrested in violence at the Nkaneng informal settlement near Rustenburg.

The mineworkers have vowed to make the mines ungovernable and to make it impossible for the world's top platinum producer to hire new workers if their wage demands are not met. Evans Ramokga, a strike leader, said last week that the company would hire new workers only "over our dead bodies."

Police apparently were responding to the miners' attempt to stop operations at Amplats' Bathopele mine on Thursday, according to the South African Press Association, which reported that two taxis were set on fire.

Amplats' operations in the platinum belt northwest of Johannesburg have been brought to standstill since most of its workers went on strike last month. Amplats

Forcible shaving of suspect questioned

Nidal Hasan. THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

An Army appeals court in Virginia is questioning whether the Fort Hood shooting suspect can be forcibly shaved.

Judges on the U.S. Army Court of Criminal Appeals also delved Thursday into a claim by Maj. Nidal Hasan's lawyers that the judge who issued the order is biased and should be replaced.

Hasan's murder trial in Texas is on hold for the appeal stemming from his refusal to shave. The American-born Muslim psychiatrist says he grew the beard for religious reasons. Army rules prohibit beards but allow for religious exceptions.

Military judge Col. Gregory Gross has rejected Hasan's religious arguments. He ordered him forcibly shaved unless he shaves himself.

Hasan faces the death penalty if convicted in the 2009 attack that killed 13 people at the Texas Army post.

Hasan would not be the first military defendant forcibly shaved. The Army has done it to five inmates since 2005, including one person who was forcibly shaved twice, according to the Army's Office of the Chief of Staff. THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

National standards.

Telecom regulator asks for consumer input on wireless retail code

Canadians are being asked for help to develop a national retail code for wireless services like cellphones and tablets.

The CRTC said Thursday that it's asking for help because consumers have said their monthly contracts are confusing and the terms and conditions can vary greatly from one wireless company to another.

"Our goal is to make sure that Canadians have the tools they need to make informed choices in a competitive marketplace," CRTC chairman Jean-Pierre Blais said in a news release.

The federal telecom regulator said consumers are being asked for their opinions on the terms and conditions that should be addressed by such a code and how the rules should be enforced, for example.

The CRTC said a national code will help Canadians better understand their rights as consumers as well as set out the responsibilities of wire-

Canadians can participate online or write to the CRTC to give their views. The CRTC will also hold a public hearing on the matter Jan. 28 in Gatineau, Que.

August data. Slumping imports reduce Canada's trade deficit

Canada's trade deficit with the world narrowed in August to $1.3 billion from $2.5 billion in July due mostly to a drop in imports, further evidence economists said of the impact of the sluggish global economy on the country.

David Watt, chief economist at HSBC Bank Canada, said the trade gap narrowed for the wrong reason — weakness here in Canada.

"Canada's trade deficit narrowed in August, and though rising energy prices suggest that the decline was for the right reasons, that is higher prices for key exports, in fact, the narrowing had more to do with slumping imports," Watt said.

Statistics Canada said Thursday that merchandise imports fell 3.1 per cent to Exports edged down 0.1 per cent in August to $37.5 billion as exports of industrial goods and materials slipped and exports of energy products increased after six consecutive monthly declines.

Wendy's revamps 30-year-old logo

Wendy's pigtailed girls are getting a tweak. For the first time since 1983, the Dublin, Ohio-based fast food company is updating its logo in a move intended to signal its ongoing transformation into a higher-end hamburger chain.

Instead of the boxy, old-fashioned lettering against a red-and-yellow backdrop, the pared down new look features the chain's name in a casual red font against a clean white backdrop.

An image of the smiling, cartoon girl in red pigtails floats above — though this girl looks more vivid and not quite as childlike.

CEO Emil Brolick said the current logo had served the company well for the past three decades, but that it was time for an update. Still, Brolick said he was encouraged by consumer feedback in testing

BIG BIRD AD LEAVES US TICKLED PINK

THE LIST
Neil Morton
metronews.ca

It's that time again; the time when The Metro List combines everything from the awesome to the zany to remind you that your world is getting weirder by the week.

1 Eighties re-enactment. Everyone knows that iconic scene from 1989's Say Anything with John Cusack (as Lloyd Dobler) holding up the boom box while playing In Your Eyes for Ione Skye (as Diane Court). Well, Cusack showed up on stage with a boom box for Peter Gabriel at the Hollywood Bowl on the weekend before he performed the song. Eighties movie re-enactments in real life = retro awesome.

2 The shocking split. They were one of those Hollywood couples that gave you hope for longevity in Hollywood couples. But on Monday, after 30 years of marriage, actors Danny DeVito and Rhea Perlman announced they were separating. Love is dead. In Hollywood, that is. Not in the real world.

3 Poor Elmo. Big Bird has become a huge star after Mitt Romney's remarks in the debate about loving him, but that he would still be cutting funding from PBS. Big Bird made an appearance on Saturday Night Live, and stars in Obama's new campaign ad in which Big Bird and Sesame Street are compared to Bernie Madoff and Wall Street. Poor Elmo is waiting for a Romney endorsement now.

4 Ben Affleck. The director/actor went on Twitter Monday to host an online chat about Argo, his new drama/thriller opening Friday Oct. 12. Affleck showed his funny side, tweeting if he wasn't directing, "I'd be writing Twitter feeds for celebrities." And if Argo "were mistaken for #FARGO, I wouldn't mind. Pretty great movie." But just don't mistake Argo for the Toronto Argos.

5 Jen's rock. Jennifer Aniston's ginormous engagement ring from fiancé Justin Theroux caught on camera was the talk of the Internet, with some people calling it over the top, pretentious and gaudy. Of course, there's always the remote possibility Aniston's pranking us with that huge rock. Or trying out for Real Housewives of Beverly Hills.

6 Sexiest woman alive. It must be an honour for Mila Kunis to receive this title from Esquire magazine in their November issue. And her beau Ashton Kutcher must be an equally happy camper. Runners-up for the title include Anne Hathaway, Katie Holmes and my wife, Christi. Now, the part about my wife isn't true, but I just got enough brownie points to last a week for suggesting it.

7 Tim Tebow. Monday night's NFL game between the Jets and Texans became one of good versus evil when Jets backup QB Tim Tebow (a devout Christian) tweeted out earlier in the day "Looking forward to giving God all the glory in tonight's 666th Monday Night Football game. Romans 8:37-39." Evil won out, barely, as the Texans beat Tebow 23-17.

8 Lena Dunham. The Girls creator's autobiographical Not That Kind of Girl: A Young Woman Tells You What She's Learned, is the talk of literary circles. A bidding war for the 26-year-old's book of essays ended with her signing a $3.5-million US deal with Random House. Publishers, if you're interested in Not That Kind of Guy: A Middle-Aged Man Tells You What He's Learned, give me your best offer.

9 Eric Winston. An eloquent post-game rant by the Kansas City Chief offensive lineman went viral on YouTube after he tore into hometown fans who cheered an injury to their own QB Matt Cassel, who had been performing poorly. Cassel suffered a concussion and Winston laid into the fans, calling the cheering "100 per cent sickening." Indeed, those fans were so far offside.

10 Jian Ghomeshi's 1982. This goofy, thoughtful memoir by the host of CBC Radio's Q gives the goods on life growing up as a Persian-Canadian boy in the early '80s in Thornhill, Ont. And it also covers the influence of new wave music (Bowie, The Clash, Talking Heads — yes!) on Ghomeshi. Full of pop culture, full of Canadiana, full of the '80s — like it on Facebook, love it in real life.

11 Twitter quake. The Montreal region was hit by a small quake Wednesday night, and people took to Twitter with some comic gems, like "Apparently the Hockey Gods are pissed that the puck won't be dropping at the Bell Centre on Thursday. #earthquake #montreal," tweeted one person. And "PVRs have spoiled me. I want to rewind real life by 10 minutes so I can feel that #earthquake again" said another.

Reel Guys

RICHARD
CROUSE AND
MARK BRESLIN

Argo. The Reel Guys may have uncovered the underlying intent of this movie about a Hollywood-assisted CIA op in Iran

Richard: Mark, despite being based in truth, this spy story has the kind of Hollywood feel that reduces the agents to stereotypes — the world-weary spymaster, the by-the-book boss wielding the “Clipboard of Authority” — and the mission to a series of set pieces involving split-second timing and imminent danger. But this isn’t Tinker Tailor Soldier Spy, with that movie’s pensive take on the intelligence racket. It’s an Affleck-directed thriller that despite its overreliance on well-worn theatrics, works well.

Mark: I’m so glad it isn’t Tinker Tailor Boring Spy. That put me to sleep. This is a fast-paced, often-funny caper movie. Everyone plays their parts well, but it’s not an actor’s movie, it’s the story that matters. And what a story! It seems absurd but it’s too loopy NOT to be true. You might say the film buys into the American belief that Hollywood conquers all, even an international crisis, but it sends it up satirically too. And Canadians are partly the heroes of the film — sort of.

RC: The Canadian connection is played with a sort of understated aplomb, which I suppose suits our national character, but I would have loved to see Ken Taylor played as more of an action hero, like Captain Canuck with diplomatic immunity. I’ll also agree this isn’t an actor’s movie, but you have to love Alan Arkin as Hollywood mogul Lester Siegel.

Arkin is the most flamboyant actor on screen and injects needed energy into stateside scenes.

MB: So true about Arkin; he’s the only one who stands out. And he has the best line in the film: “If I’m going to make a fake movie, I want it to be a fake hit!” I actually spent time wondering if the fake movie might actually be watchable if it were made. The plot didn’t look any worse than John Carter. And here’s a nice paranoid thought: The Iranians in the movie looked dangerous, and the timing of the movie’s release, on the eve of a possible U.S. military intervention into Iran, seems convenient. A CIA co-production, Richard?

RC: Great, now the Reel Guys are going to end up on some kind of CIA watch list. Thanks for exposing the real purpose of this movie.

Synopsis

The action begins in 1979 as Iranian militants invade the U.S. embassy in Tehran, taking 52 of the 58 diplomats hostage. Six manage to escape, making their way to refuge at the home of Canadian Ambassador Ken Taylor (Victor Garber). In the U.S. the CIA hire Tony Mendez (Ben Affleck), an “exfiltration” expert to smuggle the six out of Iran. Creating false identities, he has them pose as a film crew scouting locations for a fake sci-fi flick called Argo.

Comedy

Here Comes The Boom

Director. Frank Coraci

Stars. Kevin James, Salma Hayek

Here Comes the Boom may not bring the boom but it's not quite cinematic doom either. At the broad comedy's core is Kevin James playing earnest as a bored biology teacher engaging in mixed martial arts to raise funds for his financially-strapped school. As outrageous a premise as that is, it still sort of works due to some charming gags and bold brawl scenes. However, constant jabs of formulaic sentiment definitely keep the film from becoming a true champ.

STEVE GOW

Comedy

Seven Psychopaths

Director. Martin McDonagh

Stars. Colin Farrell, Sam Rockwell

It may not be as neatly-structured as his Oscar-nominated breakthrough comedy In Bruges but Martin McDonagh's Seven Psychopaths is certainly as entertaining. A bizarre riff on the art of screen-writing, the dog-napping caper features a struggling scribe (Colin Farrell) who finds inspiration in the shady characters that arise when his best bud nabs a mobster's mutt. While it's certainly a complex narrative that will lose many mainstream moviegoers, snappy dialogue and a fun cast make Psychopaths a big score. STEVE GOW

Horror

Sinister

Director. Scott Derrickson

Stars. Ethan Hawke, Juliet Rylance, James Ransone

A true crime author (Ethan Hawke) is so convinced he's on to a new real-life mystery with the makings of a bestseller he relocates to a small town and a new house. He doesn't tell his wife or kids that the house is actually the scene of the crime he's investigating or about the disturbing home movies he finds in the attic. Sinister is a good old-fashioned spooky movie. It shies away from getting really down and dirty — most of the really grim stuff is left to our imaginations — but it builds tension well and will leave you unsettled.

Matthew Fox looking lean and mean in Alex Cross. HANDOUT

Matthew Fox underwent a startling physical transformation, dropping down to nearly zero per cent body fat to play the psychotic assassin Picasso in Alex Cross, so it's understandable that he's been getting a lot of diet and exercise questions.

How tired are you of getting diet and exercise questions?

(Laughs) Yeah. I fortunately braced myself for the fact that that was going to be one of the things that people were going to come with as far as questions. So I'm not too tired about it. It was a lot of hard work, man. I don't watch any playback or rushes or anything like that — I still haven't seen the movie. I think down the road I always hit a point where I'm like, "OK, now I can watch this." So I really hadn't seen myself and what I was setting out to accomplish with that guy until somebody sent me [a promotional photo]. Somebody forwarded it to me and I opened this email, and it's this image of myself in the cage thing where he's breaking the guy's arm. And I was like,

"Whoa, dude, that is so intense and disturbing."

So where are you as far as watching your own stuff? What have you seen?

Well, I mean I've seen Speed Racer a couple of times. I watched the first half-season of the first year of Lost. And I've seen Vantage Point, I've seen We are Marshall. I haven't seen any of the three that are going to be coming out. I haven't seen Alex Cross or World War Z or Emperor.

Celebs battle over best Bond

"He has all of what you expect from Bond. He was debonair, classy and yet had a twinkle in his eye and he's a handsome guy who can act."

GoldenEye actress Famke Janssen. Talking up her co-star in that movie Irish actor Pierce Brosnan.

"Timothy Dalton deserves more credit than he gets. He nails the dark and dangerous element, but unlike Daniel Craig (Connery's runner up in my book), Dalton also brings an elegance and humour to the role."

Star of Guys with Kids Jesse Bradford on the only Welsh man to ever play Bond.

Bond with the classics

Spy soundtrack.

With Adele's Skyfall pleasing the ears of fans, we look at the other songs that made the secret agent saga famous

With the release of the latest Bond movie Skyfall and the film's impressive song of the same name by British songstress Adele, Metro looks at a long line of iconic tunes that helped make Bond the sophisticated, escapist's franchise that it is today.

Goldfinger by Shirley Bassey from Goldfinger

Classic film, classic voice: Bassey recorded three Bond themes, the only performer to do more than one.

Bond Theme/Kingston Calypso/Three Blind Mice by Monty Norman from Dr. No

The first, and, if not the best, it deserves credit for setting the tone for future Bonds, although the end of the YouTube clip for the song is just odd. Plus: funky title design!

Live and Let Die by Paul McCartney & Wings from Live and Let Die

Love it when the guitar breaks out. Or are we thinking of the Guns N' Roses cover?

Nobody Does it Better by Carly Simon from The Spy Who Loved Me

The title says it all.

A View to a Kill (Dance Into the Fire) by Duran Duran from A View to a Kill

For a certain generation, Roger Moore is James Bond, and this was his definitive '80s theme.

Let your headphones take you into 007's world. ISTOCK

OHMSS Title Theme by John Barry Orchestra from On Her Majesty's Secret Service

Sampled by DJs even today, this classical hit is more fondly remembered than George whatshisname.

Diamonds are Forever by Shirley Bassey from Diamonds are Forever

Another Bassey smash, this for the last official film to star Sean Connery.

From Russia with Love (Instrumental) by John Barry from From Russia with Love

Another instrumental, and still glorious 50 years later.

The World is Not Enough by Garbage from The World is Not Enough

Kudos to the producers for taking a risk here, hiring an alt rock band with electronic, melancholy touches, to shake things up. It's Bond remixed.

You Only Live Twice by Nancy Sinatra from You Only Live Twice

A year after her hit These Boots Are Made for Walkin', Frank's daughter scored another hit.

Moonraker by Shirley Bassey from Moonraker

Bassey is still alive and performing Bond songs. Bring her back!

Thunderball by Tom Jones from Thunderball

Who better to sing a Bond song than a man who scores just as many ladies?

The Man with the Golden Gun by Lulu from The Man with the Golden Gun

Lovely. But we prefer Lulu's To Sir, with Love

GoldenEye by Tina Turner from GoldenEye

She's an icon. This song, not so much.

Licence to Kill by Gladys Knight from Licence to Kill

The track sounds very 1989, but we're nostalgic for it. Unlike Sheena Easton's.

For Your Eyes Only by Sheena Easton from For Your Eyes Only

The '80s Brit sings this one right into the camera, and gives it her all. We remember it being played in dentists' offices everywhere.

All Time High by Rita Coolidge from Octopussy

The tune is passable but we dock points because she never says the word Octopussy.

The Living Daylights by A-Ha from The Living Daylights

Side note: A-Ha's video for Take on Me was better than this entire film.

Another Way to Die by Jack White & Alicia Keys from Quantum of Solace

Stuttering, rockabilly, and featuring a weird pair, this tune is at least bolder than the movie, one of the worst Bonds ever.

Tomorrow Never Dies by Sheryl Crow from Tomorrow Never Dies

There's no one less Bond than the woman behind elevator music like All I Wanna Do.

Die Another Day by Madonna from Die Another Day

Madonna + vocoder = a dated techno fail. This just misses last place because at least we remember it.

You Know My Name by Chris Cornell from Casino Royale

A revitalizing movie. With a theme song sung by a grunge-era relic.

Grey's star McKidd reflects on how far he has come

THE WORD
Dorothy Robinson
scene@metronews.ca

"I can't believe I had to come all the way to New York to get a glass of Macallan," proclaimed actor Kevin McKidd's extremely Scottish father Neil on Wednesday night. He was sipping the scotch whisky at a party celebrating a new creative campaign between his son, photographer Annie Leibovitz and Macallan.

It was a good crack by the elder McKidd. He and his wife, Kathleen, raised Kevin in Elgin, which is just a few miles away from the Macallan distillery, where the actor worked as a teenager. "I was literally the guy who swept up all the crap and did all the crap jobs," recounted Kevin, who is probably most famous for portraying Dr. Owen Hunt (a.k.a. McRugged) on Grey's Anatomy. "I was the hired hand holding all the rubbish."

And now he's being photographed by Leibovitz for the Macallan Masters of Photography campaign, which is comprised of 1,000 limited edition bottles featuring various portraits of McKidd. "It's extremely surreal," he said.

Angry Bieber takes to Twitter as 'personal' footage, items are stolen

Justin Bieber had his computer and camera stolen from backstage during a tour stop in Washington state this week, he announced on Twitter. "Yesterday during the show me and my tour manager Josh had some stuff stolen. Really sucks. People should respect other's property," he posted. "I had a lot of personal footage on that computer and camera and that is what bothers me the most." It's unclear just how "personal" that footage is, but so far there have been no reports of anyone looking to sell anything compromising from Bieber's collection.

Liquid Assets

Wine your way right into autumn

LIQUID ASSETS
Peter Rockwell
@therealwineguy
liquidassets@eastlink.ca

As my summer worshipping friends shed a tear for the recent passing of the seasonal torch, I'm reveling in fall.

I mean, what's not to love about autumn? There's the incredible colours, me rocking my jacket collection on cool, crisp afternoons,

Halloween and, of course, a chance to match rustic wines with the harvested bounty — thanks to my local food growers.

While I hate liquid pigeonholing, once in a while you have to look deep into your glass and admit that some wines just seem to taste better at certain times of the year.

A textbook example are the reds from Italy's Chianti region in Tuscany.

The sangiovese grape calls the area home and its combination of bright violet aromatics and ripe plum/cherry fruit flavours has an earthy charm that speaks volumes to the essence of fall.

The Ruffino Chianti DOCG ($14.95 - $17.99) is a straightforward version that's been a mainstay of Italian restos since the 1970s. The current 2011 edition is soft and supple with a plump, dark berry personality that makes a perfect partner to light stews, roasted poultry, tomato-based pasta sauces and, of course, pizza.

PRICES REFLECT THE RANGE ACROSS THE COUNTRY. SOME PRODUCTS MAY NOT BE AVAILABLE IN ALL PROVINCES.

Anything Taco

Tacos are huge! Fish tacos, bison tacos, Mexican seasonings or more fusion esoteric flavours abound. If it is wrapped in a corn or wheat tortilla, it is cool. If it has slaw or pickles, it is over the moon, super cool. The newest versions have soft corn tacos rather than the envelope ones that your mom made, which leaked and cracked and drizzled meat juice all down your arm. Nowadays, you really ought to eat this art with a fork.

Dolce De Leche

Literally "sweet milk," this Portuguese simmered and caramelized milk has taken over menus. Its creamy, smooth, uber sweetness graces everything from chocolate cake to churros these days — and with good reason.

Grilled Cheese

Any way you slice it, the classic standby has become a shining example of gourmet. Mixing cheeses with condiments, meats with pickles, thick breads and thin is very au courant. And if you can get your grilled cheese from a food truck, well, aren't you the cat's meow?

Food Trucks

Most major cities are jumping on the bandwagon and figuring out zoning to allow these restaurants on wheels to work their magic. Nimble small business chefs are cooking up a storm of everything but burgers and fries. Deep fryers aren't standard equipment anymore but creativity and a "fresh is best" attitude are.

Ethnic Condiments

The more authentic the condiment, the better! You've never had such fun mixing Indian Raita with spicy Mexican food or garlicky chimichurri with sheep's milk brie on baguette. Chutneys of all shapes and flavours as well as harissa and other flavourful pastes make a meal sing.

Cupcakes

These wee treaties are not going away. A cake is too much of a commitment but a cupcake can cheer you up in a few bites and not leave eight more pieces in the kitchen to call your name. Apples, baked, caramelized or stewed are also making a comeback and if you find a cupcake containing those flavours, buy it!

Artisan Cheese

Isn't it a dream that every foodie has? To milk a goat, figure out how to make that milk into delicious cheese and enjoy it for the year? Luckily, enough folks have ditched the city slicker life for a farm to do just that in enough quantities to share. If you can milk it, artisans are making cheese from it in small delicious batches.

Grilled Cheese Upgrade. Put your knowledge of trends to good use

This recipe combines two of the fall food trends — grilled cheese and chutney, which is an ethnic condiment.

1. Preheat a cast iron skillet to medium-high and butter one side of each piece of bread.

2. Place two slices face down into skillet, top with cheese and a dollop of chutney, cover with second slice, butter side out.

3. Flip once and allow cheese to melt.

Sidney sees solution ahead

NHL. Penguins superstar believes lockout won't erase entire season

Sidney Crosby can't even get through a conversation with his grandmother without the topic being raised.

A phone call back to Nova Scotia over Thanksgiving weekend inevitably veered towards the status of the NHL's collective bargaining talks and included the $3 billion question being asked throughout the hockey world: When will the season start?

"It's all anybody wants to talk about," Crosby said Thursday.

That includes the Penguins captain, who fielded questions from reporters at a practice facility in the suburbs of Pittsburgh. It was a morning he should have been preparing for the season opener — Friday's game against the Islanders was cancelled by the lockout — but instead found himself going through drills with a handful of teammates.

They are the optimistic few who are staying in town with hopes that a settlement will soon be reached and training camp can open. At this point, Crosby isn't even willing to

Wishful thinking

The progress Crosby is hoping for didn't happen this week during two days of meetings between the league and NHLPA in New York.

- The sides broke off talks Thursday afternoon and reported no progress in their ongoing stalemate.

entertain the notion that the work stoppage could threaten the entire season.

"I can't see it getting to that point, I really can't," he told The Canadian Press. "If anything, my thoughts are more just about whether the NHL has a date in mind (for the season to start) and just when they're actually going to start negotiating."

Much of Crosby's optimism is rooted in the growth he's seen since entering the NHL. He was skating in the QMJHL during the 2004-05 lockout and helped propel the sport to new heights when the "new" NHL returned the following season.

"There's a lot of momentum," said Crosby. "I just really hope that the (owners) aren't taking that for granted."

THE CANADIAN PRESS

Back on the sidelines

Another season cut short

The timing of the current lockout is particularly tough for Crosby, who was limited to just 63 regular-season games the last two seasons because of concussion symptoms.

He's now feeling better than ever — "I've come a long way" — but believes all of the time he spent on the sidelines recently has helped him stay patient during negotiations.

Crosby certainly looked as though he hadn't missed a beat while being put through skating and stickhandling drills by a skills instructor on Thursday.

Crosby said he would consider playing overseas eventually, but likely only if the entire NHL season is cancelled.

"I don't have a date in mind," said Crosby.

The Saskatchewan Roughriders' three-game winning streak will be tested against the Edmonton Eskimos on Saturday in Edmonton.

Riders head coach Corey Chamblin says the Eskimos are now a bigger threat since Edmonton head coach Kavis Reed's announcement that veteran quarterback Kerry Joseph will be starting for the rest of the season.

"They are a tougher team right now," said Chamblin. "They are back to being that football team that everyone will have to contend with."

The Riders have been changing things up this week with their practice schedule, moving away from Mosaic Stadium. Wednesday the Riders practised indoors at the Credit Union EventPlex and on Thursday they worked out on Leibel Field, a minor league football complex in Regina.

"It actually took me back to when I stepped onto (a football) field for the first time, it is a really impressive facility," said Riders defensive coordinator Richie Hall. "It is a place that I think the city feels very proud of and it was a privilege for us to go out and play there."

The Riders and Eskimos kick off Saturday at 2 p.m. at Commonwealth Stadium.

Soccer. Canada's Hart keeps it loose ahead of huge World Cup qualifier

Stephen Hart is as laid-back as they come.

The Trinidadian-born head coach of Canada's men's national soccer team is soft-spoken, thoughtful and measured in dealing with his players and media.

So, ahead of what he's quick to call "the biggest" game of his coaching career, Hart, 52, eschewed a rousing speech in favour of a sports video.

On golf.

"Last night, he showed us a non-soccer video of Tiger Woods making a shot at the Masters, chipping the ball in," captain Kevin McKenna

Canadian coach Stephen Hart
TORSTAR NEWS SERVICE

said Thursday after the final training session ahead of Canada's key World Cup qualifying match against Cuba at BMO Field on Friday night. "It was a good video."

Woods' miraculous shot at the 16th hole en route to winning the 2005 Masters hardly seems the best way to motivate 21 professional soccer players. Then again, neither does cracking jokes in team meetings.

"He comes with a different approach and I think everyone responds to it," McKenna, a central defender, said of the coaching style of Hart.

With two games remaining in this semifinal stage of qualifying for Brazil 2014, Panama (3-1-0) leads the group with nine points. Honduras and Canada (both 2-1-1) are tied with seven points, but Honduras has the edge on goal differential.

Are Rider fans as cuckoo as documentary says? Lions still looking like the class of Canadian football; Argos maligned in mediocrity

Photos by The Canadian Press/Torstar News Service/Getty Images

Not representing Riderville

The 13th Man feature on TSN has everyone talking, with many critics giving the show a "thumbs down." The problem? Some feel the one-hour special painted Rider fans as a little off-kilter. There are fanatics for whom it's more than just a game, but not all Rider Rooters paint the logo on their garage door or wear their Darian Durant jersey to Cancun in February. As for the young journalist who was quoted saying, "There's nothing else here..." Ouch!

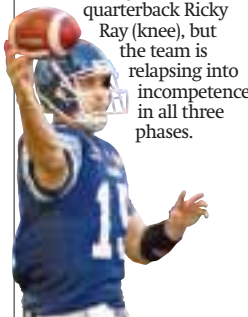

Glenn's play has Stamps worried

The Stamps have to be counting on Drew Tate's return before the end of the season. While Kevin Glenn has performed well in 12 straight games for Calgary, he stunk against B.C. last week, leaving many to wonder if Calgary can get out of the West without a more dynamic pivot. You have to believe Stamps' brass was thinking the same thing after they disposed of Henry Burris.

Geography aiding inept Argonauts

The Argos proved again this week they are merely a .500 team and shouldn't compete for the Grey Cup ... except the entire East Division sucks and Toronto still has a chance to finish first. Yes, they miss veteran quarterback Ricky Ray (knee), but the team is relapsing into incompetence in all three phases.

No denying power of Lions

We're seeing again why the Lions are Grey Cup champs and favourites to repeat in 2012. To win it all last season after an 0-5 start and now, beating Calgary in a first-place showdown without three key injured players, proves this club is special. Head coach Mike Benevides calls it "DNA", something the club has developed by overcoming obstacles. The Lions are 21-5 since that woeful start last season.

Burris' season being buried

It's laughable to think QB Henry Burris has passed for more than 4,000 yards and 34 TDs, numbers good enough to rewrite the Ticats record books, but the team could miss the playoffs. Even though the Tabbies defence has been putrid, having surrendered more than 30 points nine times this season, Burris is taking the heat.

Bombers have to go with hot hand in Elliot

No matter how good Buck Pierce is feeling, the team just has to start QB Joey Elliott this week against Calgary. After a three-TD performance last week in Montreal, and with Pierce still recovering from a concussion, Elliott deserves another chance to not only start, but play a complete game — something Pierce rarely does.

MLB

Giants walk road to a mammoth series comeback

Not just any comeback would get San Francisco back to playing for a pennant. It would take one of Giant proportions.

And Buster Posey believed it could happen. Even after the Giants left the West Coast down two games, the National League batting champion insisted his team could pull it off, despite the long odds.

With one swing, he got everyone else believing it, too.

Posey hit the third grand slam in Giants' post-season history on Thursday, and San Francisco pulled off an unprecedented revival, moving into the championship series with a 6-4 victory over the Cincinnati Reds.

Werth goes long to extend Nats' post-season

The Washington Nationals signed Jayson Werth to show them how to win. His game-ending homer Thursday night extended their surprising season.

Werth led off the bottom of the ninth inning by driving Lance Lynn's 13th pitch into the left-field stands to give the Nationals a 2-1 victory over the defending World Series champion St. Louis Cardinals and force a Game 5 in their NL division series.

The best-of-five series will end Friday night in Washington, with the winner advancing to face the San Francisco Giants in the NL championship series.

"It's what you play all season for and what you work out all winter for and what you get to spring training early for," Werth said. "We have a chance tomorrow to take that next step. I know my teammates will be ready and the city will, too."

INTRODUCING
DANGER ZONE

Horoscopes

♈ Aries

March 21 - April 20

What you decide to focus on today and over the weekend depends on trust. Specifically, do you trust partners and colleagues enough to take their advice seriously? That's something only you can decide.

♉ Taurus

April 21 - May 21

The planets indicate that the more you push yourself now, the more you will achieve. The approaching new moon will boost your vitality and make it easier to get things done — both at home and at work.

♊ Gemini

May 22 - June 21

You won't lack for confidence over the next 24 hours. Even if you are one of those rare Geminis who is cautious by nature, you will take risks left, right and centre. Don't aim for perfection, aim to have fun.

♋ Cancer

June 22 - July 23

You want the chance to prove yourself to the world and you will get it over the next few days. But don't push yourself so hard that you risk some sort of injury. Everyone has limits — even a Cancerian.

♌ Leo

July 24 - Aug. 23

It seems you have something on your mind, something you feel needs to be said, and if others don't like it that's just too bad. You can be quite harsh when the mood takes you — and it's taking you now.

♍ Virgo

Aug. 24 - Sept. 23

You need to adopt a more adventurous approach, especially where your personal life is concerned. Most of all, you need to get over your fear of rejection. The person you most need to love is yourself.

♏ Libra

Sept. 24 - Oct. 23

There is a new moon in your birth sign on Monday. Between now and then, you should give some thought to what kind of new start you want to make. Don't limit your horizons: Think big and act big too.

♏ Scorpio

Oct. 24 - Nov. 22

It's good to be tolerant, to accept that different people see things in different ways, but that does not mean you have to change your own ways. You are who you are for a reason — a good reason, too.

♐ Sagittarius

Nov. 23 - Dec. 21

You are in one of those moods where you have very little patience with people who drag their feet or get in your way. Be warned though that if you are too abrasive, you could make a serious enemy — or several.

♑ Capricorn

Dec. 22 - Jan. 20

You may be worried that you won't make it to the top of whatever level it is you aspire to, but you will. Your greatest trait is not your ambition, but your staying power. You refuse to give up.

♒ Aquarius

Jan. 21 - Feb. 19

You've had your fill of certain people and intend to get away from them as soon as possible. Good for you. A change of scene will do you a world of good today. Stretch it to several days if you can.

♓ Pisces

Feb. 20 - March 20

The approaching new moon will help you sort out your money situation but you've got to accept it will take time. If you act in haste today, you may regret it come Monday when other options reveal themselves. SALLY BROMPTON
